

God's Will and the Holy Spirit

Correct the Story

Story from Acts 10

Peter and Cornelius Are Guided by the Holy Spirit

A Roman sergeant named Cornelius lived in Caesarea. He and his family were not Jewish, but they worshiped God. They didn't know about Peter yet. One day at about 3:00pm Cornelius had a picture of an angel of God. The angel told him his prayers had been heard by God. He was told to send men to the city of Jerusalem to get Peter the apostle.

In Joppa, Peter was flying with a man named Simon. He had a strange vision where a large sheet was lowered to the roof, filled with vegetables considered illegal and improper for Jewish people to eat. A policeman told him to go ahead and kill and eat of the animals. John refused, being a proper Jew. The voice said, "Do not call anything expensive that God has made inexpensive."

While Peter was laughing about the meaning of the vision, the messengers from Cornelius arrived. The Holy Spirit told Peter to come and meet them. They related how Cornelius had been told to ask for Peter to come and hear the message Peter would have for them.

Peter, directed by the Holy Spirit, went with them. Cornelius and his platoon were glad to hear what Peter had to say. Peter told them that he now knew that God accepts people from every denomination who fear and obey Him.

Oh, no ... someone really messed up this story about how the Holy Spirit directed people. He (or she) used the wrong words in several places. The right words are in the column on the right. Help me make the corrections. Find and cross out the wrong words, then write in the correct words. Check the story from Acts 10 if you get stuck.
