

Why Are We Even Here?

Discussion

Here we are, we're alone in the universe, there's no God, it just seems that it all began a something as simple as sunlight striking on a piece of rock. And here we are. We've only got ourselves. Somehow, we've just got to make a go of it. We've only got ourselves.

Consider this quote by John Osbourne, an English playwright (deceased):

How would you respond to his statement?

If a friend said this to you, how would you pray for him or her?
